14. A Prophecy, — Sarah T. Andrews.

15. Valedictory, — Susie A. Cooper.

"Sculptors in life are we, as we stand
With our souls uncarved before us."

CLOSING HYMN.

To Thee, O Father, would we bring
Our last united song;—
O'ershadowed by thy shelt'ring wing,
Praises to Thee belong.

Life here but dimly shadowed forth,
But acted as a dream.
Now opens up a real path,
It now hath ceased to seem.

Before us lies life's mysteries,
Its mysteries none may tell,—
Its raptures and its agonies,
Its meetings and farewells.

Before us, too, stern Labor stands,
With gaunt but earnest show;—
Kind Father strengthen our weak hands,
Thine "easy yoke" bestow.

Now, Father, in this parting hour,
Bless this united band,
Grant when life's threshold we're passed o'er,
We in thy mansion stand.

AULD LANG SYNE AT SCHOOL.

Shall school acquaintance be forgot.
And never brought to mind?
Shall school acquaintance be forgot,
And days of auld lang syne.

For auld lang syne at school,
For auld lang syne,
We'll have a thought of kindness yet,
For auld lang syne.

We oft have cheered each other's task
From morn till day's decline,
But memory's night shall never rest
On auld lang syne.
For auld lang syne, etc.

Then take the hand that now is warm,
Within a hand of thine;
No distant day shall lose the grasp
Of auld lang syne.
For auld lang syne, etc.

PARTING HYMN.--Original.

This happy day is waning fast,
And lengthening shadows fall;
E'en in our hearts a dim shade lies,
And sorrow's dewdrop falls.

Oh! not in gladness can we go
Out from our school to-night;
We linger, though Hope points beyond,
And whispers, "There is light."

We dream of triumphs, but we know
Defeats must oft be borne,
And sometimes e'en the victor's song
Is sung with hearts that mourn.

Teachers, we go; bid us Godspeed,
Schoolmates, our ties are riven,
Will you sometimes recall in love,
The class of '67?

PARTING HYMN—Original.

Our hearts are filled with sadness now,
With grief our bosoms swell,
For we here gathered now must part
And schoolmates bid farewell.
CHORUS—Oh! let us then in memory keep
The days of auld lang syne,
And oft with pleasure turn our thoughts
To auld lang syne.

Soon we must venture out upon
The voyage of life alone;
The burdens others bore for us
Will soon become our own. CHO.

Fain would we penetrate the veil
And future things explore,
But He who never errs directs,
His wisdom we'll adore. CHO.

If we are faithful to our trust,
And seek to do His will,
Then we shall meet, when life is o'er,
Where none will say Farewell. CHO.

ODE.

WRITTEN BY ABBY JOSEPHINE KENDALL.

Going out beyond the portal
  Of our dear and happy school,
Pray we that the love immortal
  Bind us to its gentle rule,
As in doubting hope we stand
On our future's border-land.

Father, make each wayward longing
  Come a sacrifice to truth;
Crown with faith our bright life's morning,
  That we ever keep our youth,
Weaving in through all our days
School resolves with grateful praise.

Wisdom's words, so fitly spoken,
  Fain we'd hear in school again;
Father, make our lives the token
  Golden fruit fell not in vain.
Bless them, bending from above —
Those who've wrought this work of love.

Schoolmates, 'mong the silvery pictures
  Sacred hung in memory's hall,
Fondly cherished in our future,
  Trust us, we shall find you all;
Never falling from His hand
He will keep our little band.

He will keep us all forever,
  Teachers, schoolmates, parents, friends,
Gild with light each hidden pathway,
  Fold us home when life's school ends.
Father, may thy spirit dwell
So we reap thy glad "done well."

ODE.

WRITTEN BY LYDIA ISABELLE KENDALL.

As we go in youth's bright morning,
Out beyond the gentle rule,
Love in faith has closely woven
Into bonds we've called "our school."
Come to us, O gracious Father,
And our hearts with reverence fill.
Here we wait thy strength to gather,
Ere we strive to work Thy will.

While we wrought in hopeful earnest,
Wisdom's voices cheered the days,
Sowing seed, whose bounteous harvest,
Ripening on, shall crowd life's ways.
Father, crown our teachers' labor
With thy sunlight, dew and rain,
Let each seed-germ thro' Thy favor
Yield its sheaf of golden grain.

In these hours of pleasant duty,
When we sought the good and true,
Noble types of strength and beauty,
Schoolmates dear, have come through you.
Fear you not we'll e'er forget them;
Greener shall their memory be
With the growing years that bear us
Towards the bright, immortal sea.

Closing now these gates behind us,
Forth then, classmates, win your life.
Yet, O God, do thou befriend us
Midst its keen, oncoming strife.
Strong but gentle, pure yet humble
Would we that our life should be;
Build in us this shining ladder,
Leading up to Heaven and Thee.

CLASS SONG.

WRITTEN BY ADDIE ISABEL MEARS.

Our tasks are done—our guerdons won,
New fields before us lie,
Our ways divide—the time is come
For that last word "Good by."
Life opens bright upon our sight
With all its waiting meeds,
And Hope, a happy-hearted sprite
Pipes in the wayside reeds.

We part, and yet a sad regret
Fills all our hearts to-day.
We meet no more as we have met,
Life has but one glad May.
Precious we hold its gathered gold,
By memory kept in trust,
And many a flower, when skies are cold,
Shall blossom from its dust.

Year after year together here
We've delved for hidden ore,
To the great oracles drawn near,
At Delphic shrines of lore.
United by one common tie
We've toiled like some glad band
Of gleaners, where the bright sheaves lie
In happy harvest land.

Our tasks are o'er—we cull no more
The precious spoil of old.
The future opens wide its door,
"The past's a tale that's told."
In grief or glee, one world have we
In which to rise or fall,
However dark its ways may be,
One heaven is o'er us all.

(Selected)

Air.—Fair Harvard.

Farewell to the days that make memory bright,
That glow with the charm of the past;
How sweet is the thought of the love that has been,
How sad that this day is the last.
The last of our life as schoolmates is passed,
The last of our freedom and youth,
May we part from here strong in the lessons of love,
And wise from the teachings of truth.

Farewell, then, bright hours so pleasantly passed,
Untrammelled by sorrow or care;
We leave, full of hope that the future may bring
Some moments as free or as fair.
One more clasp of the hand as we whisper farewell;
One more look at each face, ere we part;
Though the freshness is gone from the life we have lived,
May its friendships cling fast to each heart.

CLASS SONG.

(SELECTED.)

This day we part and bid these scenes
A long and sad farewell,
But round them oft in other days,
Will fond affection dwell;
In deathless memory they shall live,
Where'er in life we stray,
And will beguile our sorrows, as
We tread its weary way.

And as we part, and distant far
From these loved scenes are gone,
As in its swift and wonted course,
The stream of time flows on;
May we all know the highest bliss,
That to this earth is given,
And seek at last the enduring joys
Of an eternal Heaven.

SONG. "Thy Name." . . . . . Harrison Millard.

I told the rose thy name—it blush'd and stirr'd,
Its petals trembled as in ecstacy,
I cried thy name aloud—and lo! the bird
Burst into song within the thick leav'd tree.
I spake it when the moon was grey and cold—
And straight from out his East up shot the sun!
I spake it in the night—the clouds that roll'd
Above, dispers'd—the stars came one by one.
Should any whisper it when on my face
The black earth lies, calm sleeping under ground,
I think again my heart would beat apace,
And my fond lips would tremble at the sound!
And if before the gates of Heav'n I came,
And could from my own worth no entrance win,
I think that then, if I should name thy name,
Th' Eternal doors would ope and let me in!

BENEDICTION. . . . . .

PARTING SONG.

Shall school acquaintance be forgot,
And never brought to mind?
Shall school acquaintance be forgot,
And days of Auld Lang Syne?
For Auld Lang Syne at school,
For Auld Lang Syne,
We'll have a thought of kindness yet,
For Auld Lang Syne.

We oft have cheered each other's task,
From morn till day's decline,
But memory's night shall never rest,
On Auld Lang Syne.
For Auld Lang Syne at school,
For Auld Lang Syne,
We'll have a thought of kindness yet,
For Auld Lang Syne.

Then take the hand that now is warm,
Within a hand of thine,
No distant day shall lose the grasp,
Of Auld Lang Syne.
For Auld Lang Syne at school. etc.

CLASS SONG. (Selected.) . . . . . .

As the gentle summer evening,
Marshalling her sable train,
Leads the shadows from the valleys,
Clouding high-peaked hill and plain;
So the night now o'er us closing,
Breaks the barriers of our fears;
Shrouding in the past our pleasures,
Ushering in long, toilful years.

We have passed through fields of richness,
Gathering balm-buds by the way,
Homeward still we all are pressing,
And yet whither—who can say?
Gladly sad, and sadly joyful,
On Life's hither shore we stand,
Waiting for some wind to waft us
Onward to an unknown land.

Waking on our trembling heart-strings
Echoes to their mournful song,
Thought-troops sighing—"fled and flying,"
Memory's haunted chambers throng.
Classmates! may a glad fruition
Of choice hopes, repay us well
For our labor here, hereafter
Where no parting is—Farewell!

I.

The long bright years have quickly passed,
Our happy course is done;
The golden cycle swiftly sped,
The victory is won.
Through childhood's joyous, happy days,
We searched for knowledge's height,
At youth's bright golden portals still
It charms us with its light.

II.

And yet, there is a sorrow now,
Our happiness doth dim,
The thought of parting comes to us;
We sing our farewell hymn.
But still, the past we'll ne'er forget,
Our fond hearts still will hold
Its precious mem'ries that shall be
Rich stores of joys untold.

III.

And now we part, but life still waits
And higher duties throng,
Our gen'rous ardor naught abates,
We sing the self-same song.
And pray the future may be such
For teachers, classmates all,
That the old words school-days made dear,
With joy we shall recall.

I.

Good-bye, old school, within whose walls
We've staid this many a year;
Where hours of toil have seemed so light,
Shared with companions dear;
Where hours of recreation, too,
Have quickly passed away,
Till now we've reached the limit set,
And bid good-bye to-day.

II.

Some leave us here, no more to walk
In Learning's pleasant bowers,
While some pass on to further quest
Of Wisdom's fadeless flowers.
No more unbroken are our ranks,
This one last time we stand
Together, as we long have stood,
A close, united band.

III.

But as we break our ranks, and go
To fields untried and strange,
We breathe the wish that friendship's bond
Shall never meet with change;
That in a land more glorious far
Than any we have known,
We all may "meet to part no more,"
Beside the Father's throne.

O school of our happy childhood,
True friend of each youthful heart:
We pause awhile on thy threshold,
And the tears unbidden start.
Full sweetly these years have woven
Around us their magic spell,
Since first we enter'd thy portals,
And now we must say, Farewell.

Chorus:

Fare thee well, fare thee well, fare thee well,
Dear school of our happy childhood,
Fare thee well, fare thee well, we bid you all farewell.

Tho' some, as they travel onward,
Will gather life's roses fair;
And others will bend and falter
Beneath their burden of care,
We trust that the great All Father,
Who is full of truth and love,
Will unite the sever'd pathways,
In the house of rest above.

Chorus.

We go;—but lingering leave you,
And a silent tear-drop falls,
As pledge of our fond remembrance
Of the dear Old High School walls.
O Teacher and Friends and Schoolmates,
Dear ones we have loved so well!
We bid you upon the threshold,
A loving and last farewell.

The voyage, classmates, has been made, our ship draws near the shore,
To say farewell before we land, we've gathered here once more;
We gaze behind upon the waves, half sad the journey's o'er,
Half trembling thro' the mist we scan the rugged coast before.

There have been days of glory, when the wind blew fresh and strong,
There have been dreary calms that made the way seem hard and long;
Upon our hearts these memories with mingled feelings throng,
The joy, the pain, the fear, the hope, we utter in our song.

In manhood's land full many roads to honor's goal we see,
Thro' mountain pass and desert waste we'll struggle earnestly:
And at each onward step we gain, a song, a prayer shall be,
For eighty-two, dear ship that bro't us safely o'er the sea.

Our tasks are done—our guerdons won,
New fields before us lie,
Our ways divide—the time is come
For that last word "Good by."
Life opens bright upon our sight
With all its waiting meeds,
And Hope, a happy-hearted sprite,
Pipes in the wayside reeds.

We part, and yet a sad regret
Fills all our hearts to-day.
We meet no more as we have met,
Life has but one glad May.
Precious we hold its gathered gold,
By memory kept in trust,
And many a flower, when skies are cold,
Shall blossom from its dust.

Year after year together here
We've delved for hidden ore,
To the great oracles drawn near,
At Delphic shrines of lore.
United by one common tie
We've toiled like some glad band
Of gleaners, where the bright sheaves lie
In happy harvest land.

Our tasks are o'er—we cull no more
The precious spoil of old.
The future opens wide its door,
"The past's a tale that's told."
In grief or glee, one world have we
In which to rise or fall,
However dark its ways may be,
One heaven is o'er us all.

Farewell to the days that make memory bright,
That glow with the charm of the past;
How sweet is the thought of the love that has been,
How sad that this day is the last.
The last of our life as schoolmates is passed,
The last of our freedom and youth,
May we part from here strong in the lessons of love,
And wise from the teachings of truth.

Farewell, then, bright hours so pleasantly passed,
Untrammelled by sorrow or care;
We leave, full of hope that the future may bring
Some moments as free or as fair.
One more clasp of the hand as we whisper farewell;
One more look at each face, ere we part;
Though the freshness is gone from the life we have lived,
May its friendships cling fast to each heart.

CLASS SONG.

Written by Harry C. Pindar.

Oft in the gayest, gladdest strain,
Some minor note comes stealing;
For joy is near akin to pain,
And as we sing our last refrain,
We own their joint appealing.

For with the sunshine of this day
Some shade must needs be blended;
We who have walked a common way
For many years must pause and say
Farewell, the path is ended.

But though we linger hand in hand,
We will not part in sorrow;
The shadows deepen as we stand,
Farewell! we seek an untried land,
Heaven grant us all good morrow.

CLASS SONG.

Written by J. Gertrude Menard.

h, sad it is that happy days
Must have so brief a stay;
ut sadder yet that loving friends
Must take a sep'rate way.
we who stand together now,
Must feel the hidden pain,
r joys that lived in bygone years
May never live again.

Year after year, together here,
We've sought for hidden ore,
For precious gold with which to pave
The road that lies before.
We long to meet the untried world,
And live an untried life;
We've found the weapons we shall need,
To conquer in the strife.

Our school-day tasks have all been done,
Yet there remains to-day
The hardest thing of all to do,
Our last farewell to say.
But let us go with hopeful hearts,
Nor count the parting loss,
The paths that we are choosing now,
Perhaps again will cross.

CLASS SONG.

Written by Mabel T. Ellis.

Have the years flown so swiftly? Must we now say farewell?
Like a dream too soon over, whose flight breaks the spell.
After glad years together, our school days are o'er,
And the thought steals among us, we shall come here no more,
And the thought steals among us, we shall come here no more.

Should care cloud our pathway, still Hope leads us on,
Toward a brighter to-morrow in sunshine to dawn.
From the dream now awaking, let each take his way,
With earnest endeavor to the tasks of the day,
With earnest endeavor to the tasks of the day.

What now lies before us in future days dim,
Unrevealed to our vision we trust all to Him,
Our failures and triumphs alike with Him rest,
And whatever befalls us we know must be best,
And whatever befalls us we know must be best.

CLASS SONG.

Written by Helen H. Buck.

I.

Now the day has come when we all must leave
Pleasant scenes that have been so dear,
And the thought sadly comes within our hearts,
Tasks of school are now ended here.
For our work in life calls each one away,
And gladly its summons we all obey.

II.

Should our work lie distant and far away,
And we part not again to meet,
May we never forget the days here spent,
But in mind keep memories sweet.
When our tasks on earth are at last all o'er,
May all meet hereafter to part no more.

CHORUS.

Farewell, classmates dear, for the day when we part,
Filled with joy and with pain and with grieving,
At last has arrived to each sorrowful heart,
And we've come to the time of leaving.

Words by Katharine D. Ramsdell. Music by Mr. E. P. Russell.

O birds, sing blithe,
O flowers be gay
To grace our festival to-day!
Ye muses nine assemble all
Fair guests to reign in Wisdom's hall!

To-day we'll laugh,
To-day we'll sing,
Nor think of aught dull care may br
To-morrow we must needs be sad,
Why mar to-day that should be glad

Then welcome all!
All welcome be,
Who come to '90's jubilee!
'Tis our last festal day, dear friends,
Ere school life sweet forever ends.

Words by Winnifred F. Larkin. Music by Mr. E. P. Russell.

Around us the garlanded flowers are wreathed,
Exhaling sweet fragrance to-day;
Without in the sunshine, some soft-throated bird
Sings blithely its gay roundelay.
To-morrow, the flowers will wither and fade;
Dark clouds may o'ershadow the sun;
Bleak Winter's chill blast soon will hush the bird's song
All earthly gifts pass one by one.

We gather to-day, 'neath the flowers, to break,
With tears which we scarce can repel,
The ties that so closely have bound us; to bid
Our schoolmates a tender farewell.
But not like the flowers and sunshine and birds,
Shall friendships here fostered depart,
For time, while it parts us, more firmly will bind,
In love and affection each heart.

CLASS ODE. Charlotte Agnes Callahan

Afar, in destiny's tower,
The chime of the vesper bell
Calls us together, schoolmates,
To say the last farewell.

It rings in the dewy evening,
As if bidding the day depart.
But its tones, with mournful echo,
Awaken grief in the heart.

The morning of youth is over;
That morn, full of joyous light,
Has faded slowly, and vanished,
Like the sun in its glorious flight.

Let this be a greeting, not parting:
A greeting to the future so bright;
A future that will e'er be illumined
By the happy life finished tonight.

When we look for a beacon to guide us,
As we are tossed upon life's stormy sea,
May "our deeds not our words" be the maxim,
That directs our ship into the lee.

As now, in the distant tower,
The chime of the vesper bell
Is dying into an echo,—
Farewell, dear schoolmates, farewell.

In Memoriam.

ARTHUR REUBEN GAGE.

JUNE 21, 1886. JUNE 5, 1906.

"There is no Death: What seems so is transition;
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call Death.
He is not dead,—the child of our affection,—
But gone into that school
Where he no longer needs our poor protection,
And Christ himself doth rule."

IN MEMORIAM

L. HERBERT OWEN

FOR FIFTEEN YEARS PRINCIPAL OF WOBURN HIGH SCHOOL

"The longer on this earth we live
And weigh the various qualities of men, . . .
The more we feel the high stern-featured beauty
Of plain devotedness to duty,
Steadfast and still, nor paid with mortal praise,
But finding amplest recompense
For life's ungarlanded expense
In work done squarely and unwasted days."

CLASS SONG

Seniors, the past is ours!
Bright were its fleeting hours!
Quickly, too quickly the days have gone,
Duties and joys with every one.
We've had our fill of pleasure,
Memories sweet to treasure.
Sad is the fragrant June-time
As we sing our last farewell.

Seniors, to-night is ours,
Friendship, and song, and flowers.
Never as seniors we'll meet again,
But always we'll cheer for nineteen-ten:
Though time our paths must sever
We shall be loyal ever.
Precious the fragrant June-time
As we sing our last farewell.

Seniors, the world is calling;
On us its spell is falling.
There waits the work which shall test our strength,
There we shall find our place at length.
Eagerly then responding,
Away with all desponding.
Bright is the fragrant June-time
As we sing our last farewell.

—S. S. BEAN.

CLASS SONG

Words by FLORENCE V. KEE Music by ALICE A. WALSH

Far o'er the lofty mountain,
Far o'er the moonlit plain,
Into the strife and tumult
The world calls us to fame.
To halls where statesmen gather,
To fields where heroes bleed,
To mart, and throbbing ocean,—
Our class that call must heed.

Though joys of school must pass away,
Leaving but mem'ries dear,
Tonight is ours, its song and flowers,
Sweet thoughts for future years.
So, 'neath the star-lit vault of heav'n
Loud let us cheer "Eleven."
Let skies be gray, or roseate hue
To Elev'n's class we are true.

Thus in the fragrant June-tide,
We bid a last farewell
To Elev'n's class, and schoolmates dear
While answering echoes swell.
So, seniors, as we pass tonight
From school-life to the world,
Cheer for "Eleven" yet once again,
And forth our challenge hurl.

Class Song

Classmates, now the hour that we've dreamed of is here,
And it brings our school life to an end;
Let us each face the future with never a fear,
Though we know not what problems 'twill send.
When first on this journey we lightly did start,
Little thought we how much we'd regret
To break every dear and strong tie and to part
From the friends whom we'll never forget.

Many memories hover around us to-night
Of those days that we'd gladly live o'er,
May each step in our pathway of life be as bright
As the one that has just gone before.
Our motto is true, 'tis "to conquer or die".
Let us never neglect its command.
For if ever deep placed in our hearts it doth lie,
We may firmly and fearlessly stand.

Farewell! let us not say it sadly to-night
But with courage and hope of success,
And if ever we honor and stand for the Right,
Real achievement our efforts will bless.
So now as we meet for the last time as one,
Let us deep in our hearts make this vow,
That our love for "Thirteen", when our life's work is done,
Will unite us as closely as now.

MABEL R. HAMILTON, 1913.

Class Song

Tune—Fair Harvard

Dear classmates, our hearts sing a chorus of joy;
For all that we hoped for and willed,
Through the days that are sped, do we realize now;
Our long-cherished dream is fulfilled.
Tonight we are garnering sheaves from the seeds
Which in these rich furrows we've sown,
And the riper harvests of future years
We shall owe to the seasons flown.

We thrilled as we read of the great of old
And the record of glorious days,
And now let us gird ourselves for the race
And tread where victory leads.
And though we may win no crown of fame,
Yet, guided by faith and truth,
May our lives attest our loyalty
To the visions that swayed our youth.

Farewell, then, dear schooldays, that were so bright!
Farewell, oh companions dear!
May we e'er hold aloft, in its glory, the torch,
The ideal enkindled here!
And as with a friendly greeting tonight
We end our parting lay,
Each morrow of ours must sweeter be
In the thoughts of this perfect day.

Class Song

Now on the wings of whisp'ring winds
Wafted across the years,
Memories throng upon us fast,—
Hopes, and joys, and fears!
June!—'tis our last as classmates here,—
Under your shining skies,
In friendships woven through the years,
Bind us with wreathéd ties!

Yonder, the sun of setting days
Sinks down the ruddy west;
The glory shed from its dying rays
Fires us with visions blest!
Oh! Long may the flame enkindled here
Blaze in our loyal hearts!
We take for our guidance, pure and clear,
The light that its fire imparts.

Over the wooded, twilight hills,
A clarion call rings out!
Eager hearts to the summons thrill
To answer in earnest shout.
The testing of youth's strong heart and will
Is the trial that awaits each one.
May standards and courage we've gained fulfill
Hopes of success well won!

Class Song

The race is run, the guerdon won
For class of Nineteen Sixteen.
The trials o'er, no more deplore,
O, classmates staunch and faithful.
Our motto true, to see and do,
With ardor ever bright,
We'll bear aloft as flag of light,
O, Class of Nineteen Sixteen.

As friend to friend we meet the end,
O, Class of Nineteen Sixteen.
Day unto day will pave the way
That each of us must follow.
But, gleaming bright with holy light,
Though absent we may be,
The bond of friendship binds us close,
O, Class of Nineteen Sixteen.

Words and music by Florence M. Paulsen, '16.

SIXTH PARAGRAPH OF THE WILL OF MARSHALL TIDD LATE OF WOBURN, MASS. WHO DIED MAY ELEVENTH, 1904

"SIXTH. I give and bequeath to the City of Woburn the sum of two thousand dollars to be invested as a trust fund and to be known as the Marshall Tidd Scholarship. The income derived from this fund shall be annually given to two members of the graduating class of the Woburn High School, one of each sex, to be selected by the principal of the school, the mayor of the city, and the president of the Woburn Woman's Club.

"I also give and bequeath to said City of Woburn the additional sum of one thousand dollars to be invested as a trust fund and also to be known as the Marshall Tidd Scholarship. The income derived from this fund of one thousand dollars shall be annually given to two members of the graduating class of the Rumford Grammar School in North Woburn, one of each sex, to be selected by the principal of that school, the mayor of the city, and the president of the Woburn Woman's Club. The beneficiaries of these funds need not be of the highest scholarship but they must be of the highest manly and womanly character."

CLASS OF 1917

We're here to bid you farewell,
Dear old Woburn High ;
We'll praise you through vale and dell,
Dear old Woburn High ;

Chorus :

Cheer for the Class of Seventeen,
It stands for all that's right ;
Cheer for the Class of Seventeen
Cheer with all your might.

We're loyal to our class and flag,
Our colors are red, white and blue ;
We are willing to work or die
For the red, the white, and the blue ;

Chorus :

We may work with gun or with sword,
We may work with plow or hoe ;
But we'll work with one accord,
That's the spirit we will show ;

Chorus :

In the future we'll think of you,
Dear old Woburn High ;
You have been both staunch and true,
Dear old Woburn High ;

Chorus :

Words by Ethel F. Robinton. Music by Helen Wood.

CLASS SONG

Tune, "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

We've been four glad years as classmates
Years with work and pleasures rife,
That shall ne'er fade from our memory
While we "carry on" in life.
As the gold stars light the heavens,
As the beacon lights the waves,
Shall the dark clouds of the future
Be brightened by high school days.

Chorus: Schooldays now are ended
With our hands extended
To our friends and teachers dear
We bid adieu.
Out upon life's highways,
Up and down its byways,
Where'er we go, dear Woburn High
We'll remember you.

The thoughts of separation
All our hearts in sadness dress;
But the thoughts of loyal friendships
Bring back joy and happiness.
Oh, may these friendships strengthen
As onward rolls the time,
And may we meet thru' coming years
For the sake of Auld Lang Syne.—Chorus.

—Lillian F. Smith and Ruth H. Carlisle.
